PREFACE

The State Register and Manual has such a wide circulation among the schools that it seemed desirable to include in this issue a special feature of interest to Connecticut school children. During the year, we have had many requests from school children regarding the history and origin of the American Indian. We were most fortunate in obtaining an instructive article by Professor Irving Rouse, Associate Professor and Associate Curator of Anthropology, Peabody Museum, Yale University.

Professor Rouse is a well-known authority on the American Indian.

The demand for the Manual in the past has been an eloquent indication of the value placed upon the dependability of its contents. Its preparation has been in charge of the staff of the Publications Division of the Office of the Secretary of the State, under the supervision of Leonard C. Sheflott, Publications Division Supervisor. We have also enjoyed the cooperation of many others. To all of these we extend our thanks and appreciation.

Winifred McDonald,
Secretary of the State.

DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE

In Congress, July 4, 1776

THE UNANIMOUS DECLARATION of the THIRTEEN UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

When, in the course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume, among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the laws of nature and of nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed, by their Creator, with certain unalienable rights, that among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness.—That to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed, that whenever any form of government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the right of the people to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new government, laying its foundation on such principles, and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their safety and happiness. Prudence, indeed, will dictate, that governments long established, should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly all experience hath shown, that mankind are more disposed to suffer, while evils are sufferable, than to right themselves by abolishing the forms to which they are accustomed. But when a long train of abuses and usurpations, pursuing invariably the same object, evinces a design to reduce them under absolute despotism, it is their right, it is their duty, to throw off such government, and to provide new guards for their future security. Such has been the patient sufferance of these Colonies; and such is now the necessity which constrains them to alter their former systems of government. The history of the present King of Great-Britain is a history of repeated injuries and usurpations, all having in direct object the establishment of an absolute tyranny over these States. To prove this, let facts be submitted to a candid world.

He has refused his assent to laws, the most wholesome and necessary for the public good.

He has forbidden his governors to pass laws of immediate and pressing importance, unless suspended in their operations till his assent should be obtained; and when so suspended, he has utterly neglected to attend to them.

He has refused to pass other laws for the accommodation of large districts of people, unless those people would relinquish the right of representation in the legislature, a right inestimable to them, and formidable to tyrants only.

He has called together legislative bodies at places unusual, uncomfortable, and distant from the depository of their public records, for the sole purpose of fatiguing them into compliance with his measures.

He has dissolved representative houses repeatedly, for opposing with manly firmness his invasions on the rights of the people.

He has refused for a long time, after such dissolutions, to cause others to be elected; whereby the legislative powers, incapable of annihilation, have returned to the people at large for their exercise; the State remaining, in the meantime, exposed to all the dangers of invasion from without, and convulsions within.

He has endeavored to prevent the population of these States; for that purpose obstructing the laws for naturalization of foreigners; refusing to pass others to encourage their migrations hither, and raising the conditions of new appropriations of lands.

He has obstructed the administration of justice, by refusing his assent to laws for establishing judiciary powers.

He has made judges dependent on his will alone, for the tenure of their offices, and the amount and payment of their salaries.

He has erected a multitude of new offices, and sent hither swarms of officers to harass our people, and eat out their substance.

He has kept among us, in times of peace, standing armies, without the consent of our legislatures.

He has affected to render the military independent of and superior to the civil power.

He has combined with others to subject us to a jurisdiction foreign to our constitution, and unacknowledged by our laws; giving his assent to their acts of pretended legislation:

For quartering large bodies of armed troops among us:

For protecting them, by a mock trial, from punishment for any murders which they should commit on the inhabitants of these States:

For cutting off our trade with all parts of the world:

For imposing taxes on us without our consent:

For depriving us, in many cases, of the benefits of trial by jury:

For transporting us beyond seas to be tried for pretended offences:

For abolishing the free system of English laws in a neighboring province, establishing therein an arbitrary government, and enlarging its boundaries, so as to render it at once an example and fit instrument for introducing the same absolute rule into these Colonies:

For taking away our charters, abolishing our most valuable laws, and altering fundamentally the forms of our governments:

For suspending our own legislatures, and declaring themselves invested with power to legislate for us in all cases whatsoever.

He has abdicated government here, by declaring us out of his protection, and waging war against us.

He has plundered our seas, ravaged our coasts, burnt out towns, and destroyed the lives of our people.

He is, at this time, transporting large armies of foreign mercenaries to complete the works of death, desolation, and tyranny, already begun with circumstances of cruelty and perfidy, scarcely paralleled in the most barbarous ages, and totally unworthy the head of a civilized nation.

He has constrained our fellow-citizens, taken captive on the high seas, to bear arms against their country, to become the executioners of their friends and brethren, or to fall themselves by their hands.

He has excited domestic insurrections amongst us, and has endeavored to bring on the inhabitants of our frontiers, the merciless Indian savages, whose known rule of warfare is an undistinguished destruction of all ages, sexes, and conditions.

In every stage of these oppressions we have petitioned for redress in the most humble terms: our repeated petitions have been answered only by repeated injury. A prince, whose character is thus marked by every act which may define a tyrant, is unfit to be the ruler of a free people.

Nor have we been wanting in attentions to our British brethren. We have warned them, from time to time, of attempts by their legislature to extend an unwarrantable jurisdiction over us. We have reminded them of the circumstances of our emigration and settlement here. We have appealed to their native justice and magnanimity, and we have conjured them by the ties of our common kindred to disavow these usurpations, which would inevitably interrupt our connexions and correspondence. They too have been deaf to the voice of justice and of consanguinity. We must, therefore, acquiesce in the necessity, which denounces our separation, and hold them, as we hold the rest of mankind, enemies in war, in peace friends.

We, therefore, the Representatives of the United States of America, in General Congress assembled, appealing to the Supreme Judge of the world for the rectitude of our intentions, do, in the name, and by authority of the good people of these Colonies, solemnly publish and declare, that these United Colonies are, and of right ought to be, free and independent States; that they are absolved from all allegiance to the British crown, and that all political connexion between them and the State of Great-Britain, is, and ought to be, totally dissolved; and that as free and independent States, they have full power to levy war, conclude peace, contract alliances, establish commerce, and to do all other acts and things which independent States may of right do. And for the support of this declaration, with a firm reliance on the protection of Divine Providence, we mutually pledge to each other our lives, our fortunes, and our sacred honour.

CONSTITUTION OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

WE THE PEOPLE OF THE UNITED STATES, in Order to form a more perfect Union, establish Justice, insure domestic Tranquility, provide for the common defence, promote the general Welfare, and secure the Blessings of Liberty to ourselves and our Posterity, do ordain and establish this Constitution for the United States of America.

ARTICLE I.

Section 1. All legislative Powers herein granted shall be vested in a Congress of the United States, which shall consist of a Senate and House of Representatives.

Section 2. The House of Representatives shall be composed of Members chosen every second Year by the People of the several States, and the Electors in each State shall have the Qualifications requisite for Electors of the most numerous Branch of the State Legislature.

No Person shall be a Representative who shall not have attained to the Age of twenty five Years, and been seven Years a Citizen of the United States, and who shall not, when elected be an Inhabitant of that State in which he shall be chosen.

Representatives and direct Taxes shall be apportioned among the several States which may be included within this Union, according to their respective Numbers, which shall be determined by adding to the whole Number of free Persons, including those bound to Service for a Term of Years, and excluding Indians not taxed, three fifths of all other Persons. The actual Enumeration shall be made within three Years after the first Meeting of the Congress of the United States, and within every subsequent Term of ten Years, in such Manner as they shall by Law direct. The Number of Representatives shall not exceed one for every thirty Thousand, but each State shall have at Least one Representative; and until such enumeration shall be made, the State of New Hampshire shall be entitled to chuse three, Massachusetts eight, Rhode-Island and Providence Plantations one, Connecticut five, New York six, New Jersey four, Pennsylvania eight, Delaware one, Maryland six, Virginia ten, North Carolina five, South Carolina five and Georgia three.

When vacancies happen in the Representation from any State, the Executive Authority thereof shall issue Writs of Election to fill such Vacancies.

* Connecticut ratified the Constitution Jan. 9, 1788, having been the fifth State to vote for ratification.

The House of Representatives shall chuse their Speaker and other Officers; and shall have the sole Power of Impeachment.

Section 3. The Senate of the United States shall be composed of two Senators from each State, chosen by the Legislature thereof, for six Years; and each Senator shall have one Vote.

Immediately after they shall be assembled in Consequence of the first Election, they shall be divided as equally as may be into three Classes. The Seats of the Senators of the first Class shall be vacated at the Expiration of the second Year, of the second Class at the Expiration of the fourth Year, and of the third Class at the Expiration of the sixth Year, so that one third may be chosen every second Year; and if Vacancies happen by Resignation, or otherwise, during the Recess of the Legislature of any State, the Executive thereof may make temporary Appointments until the next Meeting of the Legislature, which shall then fill such Vacancies.

No Person shall be a Senator who shall not have attained to the Age of thirty Years, and been nine Years a Citizen of the United States, and who shall not, when elected, be an Inhabitant of that State for which he shall be chosen.

The Vice President of the United States shall be President of the Senate, but shall have no Vote unless they be equally divided.

The Senate shall chuse their other Officers, and also a President pro tempore, in the Absence of the Vice President, or when he shall exercise the Office of President of the United States.

The Senate shall have the sole Power to try all Impeachments. When sitting for that Purpose, they shall be on Oath or Affirmation. When the President of the United States is tried, the Chief Justice shall preside: And no Person shall be convicted without the Concurrence of two thirds of the Members present.

Judgment in Cases of Impeachment shall not extend further than to removal from Office, and disqualification to hold and enjoy any Office of honor, Trust or Profit under the United States: but the Party convicted shall nevertheless be liable and subject to Indictment, Trial, Judgment and Punishment, according to Law.

Section 4. The Times, Places and Manner of holding Elections for Senators and Representatives, shall be prescribed in each State by the Legislature thereof; but the Congress may at any time by Law make or alter such Regulations, except as to the Places of chusing Senators.

The Congress shall assemble at least once in every Year, and such Meetings shall be on the first Monday in December, unless they shall by Law appoint a different Day.

Section 5. Each House shall be the Judge of the Elections, Returns and Qualifications of its own Members, and a Majority of each shall constitute a Quorum to do Business; but a smaller Number may adjourn from day to day, and may be authorized to compel the Attendance of absent Members, in such Manner, and under such Penalties as each House may provide.

Each House may determine the Rules of its Proceedings, punish its Members for disorderly Behavior, and, with the Concurrence of two thirds, expel a Member.

Each House shall keep a Journal of its Proceedings, and from time to time publish the same, excepting such Parts as may in their Judgment require Secrecy; and the Yeas and Nays of the Members of either House on any question shall, at the Desire of one fifth of those Present, be entered on the Journal.

Neither House, during the Session of Congress, shall, without the Consent of the other, adjourn for more than three days, nor to any other Place than that in which the two Houses shall be sitting.

Section 6. The Senators and Representatives shall receive a Compensation for their Services, to be ascertained by Law, and paid out of the Treasury of the United States. They shall in all Cases, except Treason, Felony and Breach of the Peace, be privileged from Arrest during their Attendance at the Session of their respective Houses, and in going to and returning from the same; and for any Speech or Debate in either House, they shall not be questioned in any other Place.

No Senator or Representative shall, during the Time for which he was elected, be appointed to any civil Office under the Authority of the United States, which shall have been created, or the Emoluments whereof shall have been increased during such time; and no Person holding any Office under the United States, shall be a Member of either House during his Continuance in Office.

Section 7. All Bills for raising Revenue shall originate in the House of Representatives; but the Senate may propose or concur with Amendments as on other Bills.

Every Bill which shall have passed the House of Representatives and the Senate, shall, before it become a Law, be presented to the President of the United States; if he approve he shall sign it, but if not he shall return it, with his Objections to that House in which it shall have originated, who shall enter the Objections at large on their Journal, and proceed to reconsider it. If after such Reconsideration two thirds of that House shall agree to pass the Bill, it shall be sent, together with the objections to the other House, by which it shall likewise be reconsidered, and if approved by two thirds of that House, it shall become a Law. But in all such Cases the Votes of both Houses shall be determined by yeas and Nays, and the Names of the Persons voting for and against the Bill shall be entered on the Journal of each House respectively. If any Bill shall not be returned by the President within ten Days (Sundays excepted) after it shall have been presented to him, the Same shall be a Law, in like Manner as if he had signed it, unless the Congress by their Adjournment prevent its Return, in which Case it shall not be a law.

Every Order, Resolution, or Vote to which the Concurrence of the Senate and House of Representatives may be necessary (except on a question of Adjournment) shall be presented to the President of the United States; and before the Same shall take Effect, shall be approved by him, or being disapproved by him, shall be repassed by two thirds of the Senate and House of Representatives, according to the Rules and Limitations prescribed in the Case of a Bill.

Section 8. The Congress shall have Power To lay and collect Taxes, Duties, Imposts and Excises, to pay the Debts and provide for the common Defence and general Welfare of the United States; but all Duties, Imposts and Excises shall be uniform throughout the United States;

To borrow Money on the credit of the United States;

To provide for the Punishment of counterfeiting the Securities and current Coin of the United States;

To establish Post Offices and post Roads;

To promote the Progress of Science and useful Arts, by securing for limited Times to Authors and Inventors the exclusive Right to their respective Writings and Discoveries;

To constitute Tribunals inferior to the supreme Court;

To define and punish Piracies and Felonies committed on the high Seas, and Offences against the Law of Nations;

To declare War, grant Letters of Marque and Reprisal, and make Rules concerning Captures on Land and Water;

To raise and support Armies, but no Appropriation of Money to that Use shall be for a longer Term than two Years;

To provide and maintain a Navy;

To make Rules for the Government and Regulation of the land and naval Forces;

To provide for calling forth the Militia to execute the Laws of the Union, suppress Insurrections and repel Invasions;

To provide for organizing, arming, and disciplining, the Militia, and for governing such Part of them as may be employed in the Service of the United States, reserving to the States respectively, the Appointment of the Officers, and the Authority of training the Militia according to the discipline prescribed by Congress;

To exercise exclusive Legislation in all Cases whatsoever, over such District (not exceeding ten Miles square) as may, by Cession of particular States, and the Acceptance of Congress, become the Seat of the Government of the United States, and to exercise like Authority over all Places purchased by the Consent of the Legislature of the State in which the Same shall be, for the Erection of Forts, Magazines, Arsenals, Dock-Yards, and other needful Buildings;—And

To make all Laws which shall be necessary and proper for carrying into Execution the foregoing Powers, and all other Powers vested by this Constitution in the Government of the United States, or in any Department or Officer thereof.

Section 9. The Migration or Importation of such Persons as any of the States now existing shall think proper to admit, shall not be prohibited by the Congress prior to the Year one thousand eight hundred and eight, but a Tax or duty may be imposed on such Importation, not exceeding ten dollars for each Person.

The Privilege of the Writ of Habeas Corpus shall not be suspended, unless when in Cases of Rebellion or Invasion the public Safety may require it.

No Money shall be drawn from the Treasury, but in Consequence of Appropriations made by Law; and a regular Statement and Account of the Receipts and Expenditures of all public Money shall be published from time to time.

No Title of Nobility shall be granted by the United States: And no Person holding any office of Profit or Trust under them, shall, without the Consent of the Congress accept of any present, Emolument, Office, or Title, of any kind whatever, from any King, Prince, or foreign State.

Section 10. No State shall enter into any Treaty, Alliance, or Confederation; grant Letters of Marque and Reprisal; coin Money; emit Bills of Credit; make any Thing but gold and silver Coin a Tender in Payment of Debts; pass any Bill of Attainder, ex post facto Law, or Law impairing the Obligation of Contracts, or grant any Title of Nobility.

No State shall, without the Consent of the Congress, lay any Imposts or Duties on Imports or Exports, except what may be absolutely necessary for executing it's inspection Laws: and the net Produce of All Duties and Imposts, laid by any State on Imports or Exports, shall be for the Use of the Treasury of the United States; and all such Laws shall be subject to the Revision and Controul of the Congress.

No State shall, without the Consent of Congress, lay any Duty of Tonnage, keep Troops, or Ships of War in time of Peace, enter into any Agreement or Compact with another State, or with a foreign Power, or engage in War, unless actually invaded, or in such imminent Danger as will not admit of delay.

ARTICLE II.

Section 1. The executive Power shall be vested in a President of the United States of America. He shall hold his Office during the Term of four Years, and, together with the Vice President, chosen for the same Term, be elected, as follows:

Each State shall appoint, in such Manner as the Legislature thereof may direct, a Number of Electors, equal to the whole Number of Senators and Representatives to which the State may be entitled in the Congress: but no Senator or Representative or Person holding an office of Trust or Profit under the United States, shall be appointed an Elector.

The Electors shall meet in their respective States, and vote by Ballot for two Persons, of whom one at least shall not be an Inhabitant of the same State with themselves. And they shall make a List of all the Persons voted for, and of the Number of Votes for each; which List they shall sign and certify, and transmit sealed to the Seat of the Government of the United States, directed to the President of the Senate. The President of the Senate shall, in the Presence of the Senate and House of Representatives, open all the Certificates, and the Votes shall then be counted. The Person having the greatest Number of Votes shall be the President, if such Number be a Majority of the whole Number of Electors appointed; and if there be more than one who have such Majority, and have an equal Number of Votes, then the House of Representatives shall immediately chuse by Ballot one of them for President; and if no Person have a Majority, then from the five highest on the list the said House shall in like Manner chuse the President. But in chusing the President, the Votes shall be taken by States, the Representation from each State having one Vote; a quorum for this Purpose shall consist of a Member or Members from two thirds of the States, and a Majority of all the States shall be necessary to a Choice. In every Case, after the Choice of the President, the Person having the greatest Number of Votes of the Electors shall be the Vice President. But if there should remain two or more who have equal Votes, the Senate shall chuse from them by Ballot the Vice President.

The Congress may determine the Time of chusing the Electors, and the Day on which they shall give their Votes; which Day shall be the same throughout the United States.

No Person except a natural born Citizen, or a Citizen of the United States, at the time of the Adoption of this Constitution, shall be eligible to the Office of President; neither shall any person be eligible to that Office who shall not have attained to the age of thirty five Years, and been fourteen Years a Resident within the United States.

In case of the Removal of the President from Office, or of his Death, Resignation, or Inability to discharge the Powers and Duties of the said Office, the Same shall devolve on the Vice President, and the Congress may by Law provide for the Case of Removal, Death, Resignation or Inability, both of the President and Vice President, declaring what Officer shall then act as President, and such Officer shall act accordingly, until the Disability be removed, or a President shall be elected.

The President shall, at stated Times, receive for his Services, a Compensation, which shall neither be encreased nor diminished during the Period for which he shall have been elected, and he shall not receive within that Period any other Emolument from the United States, or any of them.

Before he enter on the Execution of his Office, he shall take the following Oath or Affirmation:—"I do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will faithfully execute the Office of President of the United States, and will to the best of my Ability, preserve, protect and defend the Constitution of the United States."

Section 2. The President shall be Commander in Chief of the Army and Navy of the United States, and of the Militia of the several States, when called into the actual Service of the United States; he may require the Opinion, in writing, of the principal Officer in each of the executive Departments, upon any subject relating to the Duties of their respective Offices, and he shall have Power to grant Reprieves and Pardons for Offences against the United States, except in cases of Impeachment.

He shall have Power, by and with the Advice and Consent of the Senate, to make Treaties, provided two thirds of the Senators present concur; and he shall nominate, and by and with the Advice and Consent of the Senate, shall appoint Ambassadors, other public Ministers and Consuls, Judges of the supreme Court, and all other Officers of the United States, whose Appointments are not herein otherwise provided for, and which shall be established by Law: but the Congress may by Law vest the Appointment of such inferior Officers, as they think proper, in the President alone, in the Courts of Law, or in the Heads of Departments.

THE FIRST CONSTITUTION OF CONNECTICUT

THE "FUNDAMENTAL ORDERS," 1638-9.

"Voted" January 14, 1638, the Fundamental Orders were the beginning of Connecticut as a commonwealth. Their spirit was that of a sermon preached by the Rev. Thomas Hooker a short time before their adoption, in the course of which he laid down the proposition "The foundation of authority is laid in the free consent of the people", and which he closed with the challenge: "As God has given us liberty let us take it." They recognized no allegiance on the part of the colonists to England but in effect set up an independent government. In the sense that they were intended to be a framework of government more permanent than the usual orders adopted by the General Court, they were in essence a constitution. The historian John Fiske was justified in his statement that this instrument was "the first written constitution known to history that created a government and it marked the beginning of American democracy." While in 1662 the Fundamental Orders were in a sense superseded by the charter, that document, drawn up in the colony and taken to England by its representative, was never regarded by the colonists as the source of their government, but as a protection for and guaranty of the government they had already set up for themselves. So it was that for forty years after the independence of this nation, Connecticut could still carry on its government under the charter. And so it is that this commonwealth has preserved a continuity of development beyond that of almost any other state or nation in the world.

By: William M. Maltbie

Forasmuch as it hath pleased the Almighty God by the wise disposition of his divine providence so to order and dispose of things that we the Inhabitants and Residents of Windsor, Hartford, and Wethersfield are now cohabiting and dwelling in and upon the River of Connectecotte and the lands thereunto adjoining; and well knowing where a people are gathered together the word of God requires that to maintain the peace and union of such a people there should be an orderly and decent Government established according to God, to order and dispose of the affairs of the people at all seasons as occasion shall require; do therefore associate and conjoin ourselves to be as one Public State or Commonwealth; and do for ourselves and our Successors and such as shall be adjoined to us at any time hereafter, enter into Combination and Confederation together, to maintain and preserve the liberty and purity of the Gospel of our Lord Jesus which we now profess, as also the discipline of the Churches, which according to the truth of the said Gospel is now practiced amongst us; as also in our Civil affairs to be guided and governed according to such Laws, Rules, Orders, and Decrees as shall be made, ordered, and decreed as followeth:—

1. It is Ordered, sentenced, and decreed, that there shall be yearly two General Assemblies or Courts, the one the second Thursday in April, the other the second Thursday in September following; the first shall be called the Court of Election, wherein shall be yearly chosen from time to time so many Magistrates and other public Officers as shall be found requisite: Whereof one to be chosen Governor for the year ensuing and until another be chosen, and no other Magistrate to be chosen for more than one year: provided always there be six chosen besides the Governor, which being chosen and sworn according to an Oath recorded for that purpose, shall have power to administer justice according to the Laws here established, and for want thereof, according to the rule of the Word of God; which choice shall be made by all that are admitted freemen and have taken the Oath of Fidelity, and do cohabit within this Jurisdiction (*Having been admitted Inhabitants by the major part of the Town wherein they live) or the major part of such as shall be then present.

2. It is Ordered, sentenced, and decreed, that the Election of the aforesaid Magistrates shall be on this manner: every person present and qualified for choice shall bring in (to the persons deputed to receive them) one single paper with the name of him written in it whom he desires to have Governor, and he that hath the greatest number of papers shall be Governor for that year. And the rest of the Magistrates or public officers to be chosen in this manner: the Secretary for the time being shall first read the names of all that are to be put to choice and then shall severally nominate them distinctly, and every one that would have the person nominated to be chosen shall bring in one single paper written upon, and he that would not have him chosen shall bring in a blank; and every one that hath more written papers than blanks shall be a Magistrate for that year; which papers shall be received and told by one or more that shall be then chosen by the court and sworn to be faithful therein; but in case there should not be six chosen as aforesaid, besides the Governor, out of those which are nominated, then he or they which have the most written papers shall be a Magistrate or Magistrates for the ensuing year, to make up the aforesaid number.

3. It is Ordered, sentenced, and decreed, that the Secretary shall not nominate any person, nor shall any person be chosen newly into the Magistracy which was not propounded in some General Court before, to be nominated the next Election; and to that end it shall be lawful for each of the Towns aforesaid by their deputies to nominate any two whom they conceive fit to be put to election; and the Court may add so many more as they judge requisite.

* This clause was interlined in a different handwriting, and is of a later date. It was adopted by the General Court of November, 1643.

4. It is Ordered, sentenced, and decreed, that no person be chosen Governor above once in two years, and that the Governor be always a member of some approved congregation, and formerly of the Magistracy within this Jurisdiction; and all the Magistrates, Freemen of this Commonwealth; and that no Magistrate or other public officer shall execute any part of his or their office before they are severally sworn, which shall be done in the face of the court if they be present, and in case of absence by some deputed for that purpose.

5. It is Ordered, sentenced, and decreed, that to the aforesaid Court of Election the several Towns shall send their deputies, and when the Elections are ended they may proceed in any public service as at other Courts. Also the other General Court in September shall be for making of laws, and any other public occasion, which concerns the good of the Commonwealth.

6. It is Ordered, sentenced, and decreed, that the Governor shall, either by himself or by the Secretary, send out summons to the Constables of every Town for the calling of these two standing Courts one month at least before their several times: And also if the Governor and the greatest part of the Magistrates see cause upon any special occasion to call a General Court, they may give order to the Secretary so to do within fourteen days' warning: and if urgent necessity so require, upon a shorter notice, giving sufficient grounds for it to the deputies when they meet, or else be questioned for the same; And if the Governor and major part of Magistrates shall either neglect or refuse to call the two General standing Courts or either of them, as also at other times when the occasions of the Commonwealth require, the Freemen thereof, or the major part of them, shall petition to them so to do; if then it be either denied or neglected, the said Freemen, or the major part of them, shall have power to give order to the Constables of the several Towns to do the same, and so may meet together, and choose to themselves a Moderator, and may proceed to do any act of power which any other General Courts may.

7. It is Ordered, sentenced, and decreed, that after there are warrants given out for any of the said General Courts, the Constable or Constables of each Town shall forthwith give notice distinctly to the inhabitants of the same, in some public assembly or by going or sending from house to house, that at a place and time by him or them limited and set, they meet and assemble themselves together to elect and choose certain deputies to be at the General Court then following to agitate the affairs of the Commonwealth; which said deputies shall be chosen by all that are admitted Inhabitants in the several Towns and have taken the oath of fidelity; provided that none be chosen a Deputy for any General Court which is not a Freeman of this Commonwealth.

The aforesaid deputies shall be chosen in manner following: every person that is present and qualified as before expressed, shall bring the names of such, written in several papers, as they desire to have chosen for that employment, and these three or four, more or less, being the number agreed on to be chosen for that time, that have greatest number of papers written for them shall be deputies for that Court; whose names shall be endorsed on the back side of the warrant and returned into the Court, with the constable or constables' hand unto the same.

8. It is Ordered, sentenced, and decreed, that Windsor, Hartford, and Wethersfield shall have power, each Town, to send four of their Freemen as their deputies to every General Court; and Whatsoever other Town shall be hereafter added to this Jurisdiction, they shall send so many deputies as the Court shall judge meet, a reasonable proportion to the number of Freemen that are in the said Towns being to be attended therein; which deputies shall have the power of the whole Town to give their votes and allowance to all such laws and orders as may be for the public good, and unto which the said Towns are to be bound.

9. It is Ordered and decreed, that the deputies thus chosen shall have power and liberty to appoint a time and a place of meeting together before any General Court, to advise and consult of all such things as may concern the good of the public, as also to examine their own Elections, whether according to the order, and if they or the greatest part of them find any election to be illegal they may seclude such for present from their meeting, and return the same and their reasons to the Court; and if it prove true, the Court may fine the party or parties so intruding, and the Town, if they see cause, and give out a warrant to go to a new election in a legal way, either in part or in whole. Also the said deputies shall have power to fine any that shall be disorderly at their meetings, or for not coming in due time or place according to appointment; and they may return the said fines into the Court if it be refused to be paid, and the Treasurer to take notice of it, and to escheat or levy the same as he does other fines.

10. It is Ordered, sentenced, and decreed, that every General Court, except such as through neglect of the Governor and the greatest part of Magistrates the Freemen themselves do call, shall consist of the Governor, or some one chosen to moderate the Court, and four other Magistrates at least, with the major part of the deputies of the several Towns legally chosen; and in case the Freemen, or major part of them, through neglect or refusal of the Governor and major part of the Magistrates, shall call a Court, it shall consist of the major part of Freemen that are present or their deputies, with a Moderator chosen by them: In which said General Courts shall consist the supreme power of the Commonwealth, and they only shall have power to make laws or repeal them, to grant levies, to admit of Freemen, dispose of lands undisposed of, to severall Towns or persons, and also shall have power to call either Court or Magistrate or any other person whatsoever into question for any misdemeanor, and may for just causes displace or deal otherwise according to the nature of the offense; and also may deal in any other matter that concerns the good of this Commonwealth, except election of Magistrates, which shall be done by the whole body of Freemen.

In which Court the Governor or Moderator shall have power to order the Court, to give liberty of speech, and silence unseasonable and disorderly speakings, to put all things to vote, and in case the vote be equal to have the casting voice. But none of these Courts shall be adjourned or dissolved without the consent of the major part of the Court.

11. THE CONSTITUTION OF CONNECTICUT*

As amended and in force July 1, 1949

Though the people of the state had long acquiesced under the form of government derived from the charter, and sanctioned by the legislature; yet it was considered by many that we had no constitution, as our government under the charter had never received the explicit approbation of the people subsequent to the declaration of independence. It was also considered to be inconsistent with the dignity of a free nation to hold their rights, even nominally by the tenure of a Royal Grant and that it was proper the powers of the government should be divided into separate departments, and individual rights be secured by a constitution that should control the legislature itself. It was therefore thought advisable to call a convention for that object. Accordingly, in 1818, a convention was assembled which agreed upon a constitution. It was submitted to the people, and approved by a vote of thirteen thousand nine hundred and eighteen in its favor and twelve thousand three hundred and sixty-four against its ratification. On the twelfth of October, 1818, Governor Wolcott issued his proclamation, at the request of the General Assembly, declaring that the constitution was thenceforth to be observed by all persons, as the Supreme Law of this State.

On October 1, 1901 a vote was taken as to the calling of a constitutional convention for the purpose of revising the constitution. The vote was 47,317 in favor and 26,745 against. A convention was held, a revised constitution proposed and a vote taken June 16, 1902 as to its adoption with the result of 10,377 for the acceptance of such revision and 21,234 against it.

Upon the family's return to Connecticut, Raymond Baldwin attended the public schools of Middletown, and subsequently graduated from Wesleyan University in 1916 with a Bachelor of Arts degree. He then entered the Yale Law School, leaving that institution in April, 1917, to join the United States Navy. After special training at Annapolis, he was commissioned, assigned to the Destroyer "Talbot," and rose to the rank of Lieutenant, junior grade. He served overseas in escort duty off the English and French coasts and later in the Mediterranean.

Resigning his commission in August, 1919, he returned to the Yale Law School from which he was graduated with the degree of Bachelor of Laws in 1921. The honorary degree of Doctor of Laws was conferred upon him by Wesleyan University in 1939, Trinity College in 1940 and Lincoln Memorial University (Tennessee) in 1948, and the honorary degree of Doctor of Civil Law by Bloomfield College (New Jersey) in 1946. Mr. Baldwin practiced law at New Haven, and subsequently at Bridgeport, becoming a partner in the law firm of Pullman and Comley in 1928.

Following service as prosecutor of the Town Court of Stratford, Mr. Baldwin served as judge of that court from 1931 to 1933. A member of the 1931 and 1933 sessions of the General Assembly, he served as Republican floor leader and as chairman of the House Judiciary Committee in the session of 1933. He was Governor of Connecticut 1939-1941, 1943 to December 27, 1946 when he resigned to become United States Senator.

Mr. Baldwin married Edith Lindholm of Middletown, daughter of Andrew and Louisa Lindholm, on June 29, 1922. They have three children, Lucian, Raymond, Jr., both veterans of World War II, and Tyler.

The Senator's home is in Stratford. He is a member and vestryman of Christ Episcopal Church, Stratford, and a member of the Board of Trustees of Wesleyan University, Kent School and Wilbraham Academy. He is a Mason, a Shriner, an Elk, an Eagle and a member of the Grange, the University Club of Bridgeport, the Graduate Club of New Haven and Delta Tau Delta and Phi Delta Phi (law) fraternities.

GOVERNOR'S INAUGURAL ADDRESS

Mr. President, Mr. Speaker, and Members of the Connecticut General Assembly:

By law and by tradition, we are gathered here today to consider how we may best carry out the responsibilities which the people of Connecticut placed in our hands on November 2nd. During the next few months, we shall be working closely together in the development of our legislative program. What we do, or what we fail to do, will affect, for good or ill, the life of every Connecticut citizen.

In this Inaugural Message, I shall touch but briefly on my specific recommendations for legislative action. This is not because my recommendations are lacking in urgency, but because I believe that our success will be determined by our ability to develop a common ground of understanding and respect; and that the first step in the development of such understanding is a full and frank discussion of principles.

Let me say at the outset that I do not believe we can afford the luxury of narrow-minded partisanship. Political parties are instruments by which we make our democracy responsible and effective, not weapons to harass and stultify the orderly development of government. They cannot be allowed to become ends in themselves.

In times past, we in Connecticut have been accustomed to lead the search for new methods to refine and improve the democratic process. An early Connecticut citizen, Thomas Hooker, gave the world its first written constitution. Connecticut abolished slavery eighty years before the Civil War. In the 1800's, Connecticut took a prominent part in Jefferson's fight for political democracy and Jackson's fight for increased economic democracy.

Connecticut was one of the first states to establish public schools and hospitals for the mentally ill, the deaf and other handicapped persons. In the present century, Connecticut, by its support of the reforms of Republican Theodore Roosevelt and Democrats Woodrow Wilson and Franklin D. Roosevelt, has continued in the forefront of enlightened governments.

Contrary to the dire prophecies of the conservatives, the legislative reforms of the past have not ruined industry and trade, corrupted the poor or led to socialism. Instead, industry and trade have developed hand in hand with social progress, and Connecticut has become one of the wealthiest states in the Union.

It is our responsibility at this session of the Legislature to reaffirm the liberal tradition of our state; to push forward the frontiers of security, freedom and opportunity for every Connecticut citizen.

Our task will not be an easy one. We are living in a period which breeds sharp controversy and in which unhealthy and dangerous signs of extremism are all too apparent. As public problems become more complicated, many of us are tempted to reduce issues to political clichés and to wrap our own ideas and those with which we disagree into separate vacuum-packed containers, labelled respectively "Good" and "Evil".

In our complex and often frustrating world, this kind of reaction is understandably human. But if we expect our efforts during the next few months to be effective, we must strive constantly to minimize our conflicts, and to broaden, wherever possible, our areas of agreement.

In a philosophical sense, we divide broadly into four political patterns. At one extreme are the reactionaries who make no bones about their preference for the past over the present—much less the future. At the opposite fringe are the radicals who dislike our economic, political and social structure so intensely that they can see only one solution—and that is to blow the whole works sky high. Between the extremes of right and left are the conservatives and the liberals.

At least 90% of us fit more or less generally into these two middle groups. So let us disregard the extremists and examine the difference between those of us who consider ourselves liberals and those who consider themselves conservatives.

The fact that conservatives and liberals have traditionally disagreed is basically healthy. That is the way our democratic society learns and progresses, the way it backs out of blind alleys and pushes ahead once more toward our goals of security, opportunity and freedom for us all.

Since Colonial times, conservatives have continued to be conservative; but the reforms which their fathers opposed have become the established institutions which the sons upheld as sound and desirable.

Liberals have continued to be liberal, but they are learning that idealistic dreams and brilliant schemes are not enough; that public programs must be worked out the hard and careful way and made to fit—not just the views of a handful of theorists—but the complicated needs of all of our people.

The pulling and hauling of the liberals and conservatives, while healthy and desirable, is often an uncomfortable process. In the heat of controversy, liberals are sometimes inclined to class all conservatives as "reactionaries" or even "fascists", plotting to set up a Wall Street dictatorship. Conservatives, similarly, are sometimes inclined to class all liberals as "radicals" or even "communists" determined to destroy our Constitution, enslave our people, and wreck our private enterprise system. Against this kind of political hysteria, let me repeat, we must all be everlastingly on guard. In this explosive world it is more than just unhealthy. It is dangerous.

Now let us examine the liberals and conservatives a little more closely. Those of us who consider ourselves liberals feel a justified sense of pride in the accomplishments of the American liberal tradition. Since the days of Jefferson and Jackson, we have been in the forefront of the struggle to achieve an increasing measure of economic, social and political democracy for all of our people.

We who consider ourselves liberals, however, have no right to be smug. Although Franklin Roosevelt's New Deal achieved many great things for the American people, it never did solve the problem of unemployment. In 1939, six years after Herbert Hoover left the White House, there were still 70,000 men and women walking Connecticut streets in search of jobs.

At the risk of establishing myself as a heretic, let me add that I am not too certain that we liberals have the final answer to unemployment today. Full production and full employment have been established in the postwar years—not because we have finally developed the basis for a permanent balance between wages, prices and profits; but largely because of our vast military expenditures and the program of Marshall Plan aid to Europe. In a sense, our employment problem has been solved, not through our own economic and political wisdom, but by the intransigence of Marshal Joseph Stalin.

We who consider ourselves liberals have a bad habit, too, of skipping lightly over some of the more boring details of governmental operations. We are great hands at writing eloquent declarations. But we sometimes fail to consider the administrative problems involved in putting our policies into effect. Frequently, in our impatience for a better life for all of our people, we have underestimated the hard realities of budget and finance.

The goal we liberals must set for ourselves is to make Connecticut a proving ground of competent liberalism. Good government must display a healthy respect for other people's money. Sound government requires the fullest application of our energy toward practical ends. Intelligent government should be as economical and diligent an operation as we are accustomed to associate with Yankee enterprise.

I have been frank in analyzing the shortcomings of those of us who call ourselves liberals. Perhaps those of you who consider yourselves conservatives may feel that I am entitled now to suggest a few of your own handicaps.

If I may say so, I believe that your fundamental problem lies not in any lack of humanity and good will; but in your failure to recognize the urgency of many of the needs of our people; in your tendency to feel that public problems, if left alone, will eventually solve themselves; in your reluctance to use governmental powers which clearly cannot be handled in any other way.

You are right when you say that too much government is dangerous. But sometimes you overlook the fact that if we refuse to employ enough government in the face of problems which only government can solve, then we may eventually end up with much more government than otherwise might have been needed.

The challenge which you conservatives must meet is to make conservatism in Connecticut adaptable to our ever-changing social needs. You regard centralized power with justified suspicion. But remember that whatever success we may have in solving our problems here in Connecticut will ease the pressure to pass those problems on to federal jurisdiction. Local institutions that are strong and effective are the best insurance that we can have against the arbitrary use of centralized authority.

We liberals and conservatives will continue to disagree. Undoubtedly, we will disagree at some points in the Connecticut legislative session of 1949. But let us strive to see that our disagreement, if it comes, is an honest disagreement of principles and procedure, and not a disagreement born of the political clichés and the blind prejudices which make constructive thinking impossible.

THE CRISIS IN EDUCATION

I have a feeling that the extent of our real differences is often exaggerated. As an example, consider the development of our educational system.

A little more than one hundred years ago, there did exist a tremendous controversy throughout Connecticut and much of America on the subject of education. The liberals proposed that free public schools should be established and that every child, regardless of the income of his parents, should be taught at least to read and write. The conservatives of that day felt that education for the so-called masses was fraught with revolutionary dangers, and the fight raged hot and heavy for more than a generation.

Since then, liberals and conservatives have worked side by side in all of our 169 towns and cities to develop our Connecticut schools. Today—thanks to these joint efforts—we are providing most of our children with a reasonably good education.

I wonder, however, if our present educational standards are really as good as they should be? The average Connecticut boy and girl drops out of school at the end of the second year of high school. This is no better than the national average. Only one out of seven Connecticut boys and girls goes on to college. Again, this is no better than the national average which includes low income states, such as Mississippi, Louisiana, and Tennessee. This means that we are lagging behind many other states.

Is there any real disagreement between us when I say that our Connecticut school system should be improved and strengthened in every practical way?

The future of our civilization depends on the ability of liberals and conservatives together, to solve through democratic action the complicated problems which surround us. These problems are certain to grow in complexity as the years go on. They represent an ever-growing challenge to our educational institutions. We cannot build a future which will safeguard the children. But we can build children which will safeguard the future.

We need better schools. We also need more schools, and quickly. If we don't take action soon—bold, forthright action—our school system, instead of growing stronger, will begin to come apart at the seams.

The problem is clear. The number of births in Connecticut in 1948 was more than double the number in 1939. Unless we build new schools in a hurry, instead of twenty-five children in a classroom we will soon have forty to fifty; and, as a result, substantially lower educational standards. Our cities and towns cannot finance the building of the necessary schools without state aid. Surely most of us, conservatives as well as liberals—will agree that such aid on a generous basis must be forthcoming at this legislative session.

We will need many new teachers, too—50% more at least—if we expect even to maintain our pre-war standards of education. I am sure that both conservatives and liberals in this Assembly will vote together again to expand our facilities so that the necessary teachers can be trained in the next few years.

We must remember, too, that the crisis in education extends beyond our primary and secondary schools. There is a growing agreement among us that every qualified boy or girl is entitled to an opportunity to go to college, regardless of the income of his parents. We must work toward that ideal as rapidly as possible. Connecticut University is badly overcrowded. A continuation of the building program there is essential.

AN UP-TO-DATE LABOR PROGRAM

Our labor laws, no less than our ideas on education, offer us an opportunity for nailing down the fiction that conservatives and liberals are doomed to perpetual disagreement. When unemployment compensation, workmen's compensation, and social security were first proposed, many conservatives disagreed. But in the last few years, in their speeches and political platforms, they have accepted these programs as essential factors in our increasing economic democracy.

Can't we agree now to bring these programs up to date? If unemployment insurance and workmen's compensation are right in principle, why should we continue to limit their coverage to employees of firms employing more than four or five workers? Why don't we give every Connecticut worker the right to this basic protection? Other states have already taken this step. Why should we in Connecticut lag behind?

Here's another point. In theory at least, we have accepted the principle that workers should be protected against loss of employment for reasons beyond their control. Thus, a worker receives compensation if he receives an injury on the job. He gets compensation if the plant shuts down for lack of orders and throws him out of work.

But what happens if he is unable to work because of illness; or because he breaks an ankle playing baseball with his youngsters? Should he be denied reasonable compensation? I don't think so, and I hope that a majority of you—conservatives as well as liberals—will agree.

Here's still another point on labor legislation. In some Connecticut factories, men and women, working side by side with equal skill at identical work, receive different rates of pay. Why not stop this obvious discrimination?

OLD AGE ASSISTANCE

Let's take Old Age Assistance. Today, there is a $50 limitation on the aid, exclusive of medical care, which the State can give to a needy old person. In many cases, this is insufficient to provide a decent minimum of food, clothing and shelter. The only limitation on Old Age Assistance should be the actual need in each individual case; need established by expert social workers, and based on the current cost of living. I am sure that we can agree on that.

Some of the eligibility requirements—the so-called “pauper clauses”—in our Old Age Assistance Act are clearly wrong. They destroy the purposes of the Act and take away something of the dignity to which our old people are entitled. Let us act together in the next few months—conservatives and liberals—to put our Old Age Assistance program on a decent human basis.

THE HOUSING PROBLEM

Let's move on to the question of housing. Our lack of modern housing at fair prices is undermining our society at its very foundation. When adequate housing is lacking families are broken and torn, children are brought up in squalor and bitterness, and the sense of security which can develop only on decent homes becomes impossible.

Our tragic lack of housing is a problem which concerns every individual in our State—conservatives, liberals, all of us—regardless of our incomes. Democracy can easily lose its meaning to those who are forced to double up in slum tenements.

The housing crisis did not develop overnight. Even before the war, one-third of our people were inadequately housed. Since then, tens of thousands of Connecticut homes and tenements which were scarcely fit for minimum living in 1939, have deteriorated still further. Our population has increased substantially. Home building has been held down, first by the war and then by scarcities and high prices. As a result, the shortage has grown steadily more critical.

Today, as everyone knows, even the most efficient of private builders cannot build homes to rent for less than $85 a month. That's exactly three times the average rental that Connecticut families are paying today. It's more than twice as much as most families can afford. The gap between the kind of rentals which our people need and the new rentals which private industry can now build at a profit is staggering.

If we expect to build homes at rentals that the majority of people can afford to pay, we must provide some kind of government help. This fact must be clear to all of us—conservatives as well as liberals. So let us move boldly ahead together to meet our crucial housing problem. Let us authorize an all-out building program for the coming biennium—with rentals in reach of the average Connecticut family.

Here is another point on the housing crisis. The critical shortage of housing and the gradual emasculation of our Federal rent control program has led to an epidemic of evictions, which I am sure must disturb all of you—regardless of your political viewpoint.

The Eviction Act passed by the Special Session last August has certain basic defects which make it almost ineffective. I hope that an eviction law with some real teeth in it will be passed by this session of the Assembly.

We also need a standby rent control act to take the place of the monstrosity which passed the last Assembly. I defy anyone—conservative or liberal—to explain how this act could possibly be made to work without turning rent control into the most sordid kind of political football. Read it sometime and see if you don't agree with me.

OTHER QUESTIONS

Another problem on which action is urgently needed has been referred to as the "Shame of the States"—not just the conservative states or the liberal states, but all the states. I am referring to mental hospitals. If any of you doubt the urgency of the situation in Connecticut, I suggest that you visit any one of our state hospitals during the next few weeks.

The Legislatures of several states are now taking vigorous action to correct this long neglected problem. Will we in Connecticut refuse to accept the challenge? I do not believe so.

Here's another question—minimum wages. When a Federal 40 cents minimum wage was established in 1938, many of you conservatives viewed this step with sincere alarm. Since then, most of you have accepted it as reasonable and fair.

The 40 cents an hour minimum wage of 1938 has now lost half its purchasing power. I propose that we establish an overall minimum wage here in Connecticut that will take into account the increase in the cost of living—in other words, 75 cents an hour. I hope that there is no disagreement on this.

Our limit on Savings Bank Insurance policies should also be brought in line with living cost increases. I suggest an increase from $3,000 to $5,000.

One last question. Conservatives and liberals alike believe in equal rights for every citizen, regardless of race, creed or color. And yet, today—January 5, 1949, nearly 100 years after the Civil War—it is still impossible for a Negro citizen to volunteer for our National Guard. The reason for this lies in the traditional Army regulations. You alone can correct this shameful discrimination in the State of Connecticut.

These, then, are the main features of the economic and social program on which I hope you will take action in the coming session. As men of good will, I am confident that we can reach agreement on them. I shall offer you more detailed recommendations on each in the next few days. In the meantime, let us add them all up.

Could this program, by any stretch of the imagination, be considered extreme? Not unless you are prepared to repudiate a basic tradition of New England—the tradition of social responsibility.

In our smaller towns, rural areas, and city neighborhoods, the principle of the friendly neighbor has been accepted and firmly established since Colonial days. When your neighbor's barn burns down or a falling tree crushes in a section of his roof, you pitch in with hammer and saw. If he becomes sick, you call a doctor and see that his children are taken care of after school. In the traditional New England community, the slogan, in other words, has rarely been "live and let live," but rather "live and help live."

The legislative economic and social program which I have outlined adds up, it seems to me, to a Connecticut good neighbor program on a statewide scale. If we agree on it, we will have taken a bold step together towards our democratic goal of a high minimum level of security plus maximum opportunity and freedom for every Connecticut citizen.

MORE EFFICIENT GOVERNMENT

But effective modern government calls for more than a willingness to apply the principle of the friendly neighbor to the problems of our State. In addition to warmth and human understanding, our government should possess a high degree of administrative efficiency.

Our Yankee forefathers gave us the principle of social responsibility in human relations. They also taught us to despise waste, inefficiency, and lost motion in any form. Government today, faced with complicated new problems in a complicated new world, is necessarily big government. But the fact that government is big does not mean that it must be clumsy.

Since election day, I have been almost continually occupied in a detailed study of the finances, budget, and operation of our state government. With the aid of an able group of assistants, I have probed deeply into the workings of our governmental machinery.

I have personally interviewed most of our 108 state departments and commissions.

The task has been a big one and the time has been short. I do not pretend to know all the answers. But I do know this: If we are going to make our Connecticut state government really efficient, we have a big job ahead of us.

Our long overdue effort to modernize our state government can easily bog down in political bickering. To avoid this, I propose the appointment of a temporary non-partisan commission with a mandate to study our state government with the utmost care and to report as soon as practicable its full recommendations. This commission should be set up at once so that there can be no delay in tackling this essential job.

Part of the responsibility of this temporary Commission on Organization should be a reclassification study of our state wage scales. In the meantime, I urge you immediately to establish the $180-$240 increase of 1946 and the 10% increase of last winter as a permanent part of our basic salary structure. This represents simple justice to the 16,000 men and women who work for our state government.

There are several other emergency actions which we must take promptly in the interest of increased efficiency in our State administration.

All of us—conservatives as well as liberals—agree that we must do everything within our power to bring labor and management together and to reduce the differences which lead to strikes. This will require a completely new kind of Department of Mediation and Arbitration. We need legislation on this.

We must also establish a new department to handle housing. Our present housing administration was developed before the nature of the housing crisis became clear. When I say that it is wholly inadequate to our present urgent needs, I do not mean to cast any reflection on the caliber and integrity of the men now in charge. But if we expect to get homes in a hurry, we must have the tools to handle the job.

Another urgent administrative problem involves our public works program. As I have already pointed out, most of our schools, buildings, hospitals and institutions, were well below standard in 1939. For many reasons—some good and some not so good—very little has been done since then to expand, improve, or even to repair them. The situation today has passed the point where we can temporize, delay, or postpone.

Our long deferred building needs are so vast that we cannot possibly meet them all in the next two, four or even six years. Obviously, we must tackle first things first. For this reason, I have requested all departments, including the highway department, to prepare their building recommendations on a ten year basis, with a clear statement of priorities. This will enable us to move ahead with the greatest possible efficiency and economy.

On a ten year basis, our building program will clearly become more manageable. More than that, a long range program of this kind will provide a bulwark against unemployment and recession here in Connecticut. By planning our public works in advance, we will be in a position to speed up our building program if hard times threaten, and thus take up any slack which occurs in private employment. Such foresight here would also enable us to get our full share of Federal funds as quickly as such funds are made available.

The size and importance of our building program calls for the establishment of an independent Department of Public Works headed by the most competent staff we can find.

There are several other administrative problems on which I hope you will also take action. We should revise the system of payment for our probate judges, many of whom are now paid more than the members of our State Supreme Court of Errors. We should require State Attorneys to give full time to their work. We should rewrite our election laws. We should provide recourse to State primaries so that our political parties will be more directly responsible to the rank and file membership. Liberals and conservatives who are sincerely interested in better government should find no difficulty in agreeing on these questions.

A CONSOLIDATED BUDGET

Let me now discuss briefly some of the more important questions on the development of our budget for the next biennium.

There is nothing to be gained by refusing to face up to the fact that Connecticut is confronted with a difficult economic problem. The figures presented to me by the various state agencies in making their budget requests for the next biennium totalled $400 million, which is $160 million more than these same agencies will spend for the current biennium. These estimates, delivered to me on November 15th, in accordance with the law, were drawn up before election day—in other words, before anyone knew whether the next budget would be presented to you by a Republican or Democratic Governor.

Some of the requests for additional funds were the direct result of price increases in the last two years. Food and clothing for our institutions and welfare services are up nearly 40%. Building repairs and upkeep is substantially more expensive. Most of these price increases will necessarily be reflected in our budget for the next biennium.

Some of the requests for additional funds were based on recommendations for expanded services, many of them highly desirable. The most urgent of these will appear in my budget recommendations. The others must be cancelled or postponed.

Fortunately, the new housing program and the increase in Old Age Assistance will require only $4 million for the coming biennium, which is less than 2% of our present total expenditures.

The total addition to our 1949-1951 budget due to increased costs of essential services, increases in present services, and for new programs will be manageable without undue increases in our total tax income. The difficulty lies not so much in the cost of current programs, but in the cost of the badly needed new buildings and long postponed major repairs, which make up the bulk of the $160 million increase which has been requested.

Some of these requests are, I believe, unnecessary. But a major part of them are not only justified, but long overdue, and must be included in our ten year building program. The most urgent needs should be scheduled for the coming biennium.

The question of financing this long postponed building program is crucial. In any well run business, such a program would be paid for out of capital reserves accumulated in the period when building was impossible. That is the way American corporations have financed the tremendous capital expansion which has been in progress since 1946, an expansion running into billions of dollars.

Every well-run state government has followed the same procedure. California, Michigan and New York and many other states have been able to handle most of their postwar building through reserves which were prudently built up during the war years. New York State alone put aside a postwar building fund of $540,000,000. California's fund totals $476,000,000.

Our postwar needs here in Connecticut, as in other states, have been obvious for many years. It is unfortunate that we lacked the simple foresight to put aside the necessary funds to handle them. Our inadequate $16 million "postwar building fund" has long since vanished—most of it into the General Fund—to pay for current operating expenses.

As a result, we must now start from scratch in tackling the problem of financing this long-term building program—a program which was, from the start, an obvious postwar necessity. A bond issue of some kind seems inevitable.

One final word about the budget which I shall present to you on February 1st. In past years, the budget has been presented on a piece meal basis. The separation of expenditures and income into special funds and budgets has made an overall understanding of the State's financial situation difficult.

The new budget for the coming biennium will be a complete, comprehensive statement of Connecticut's needs, resources, income and commitments. It will give you not only my best judgment of the total minimum program required, but also a statement of our total income needs and the sources through which I recommend these needs should be met.

I sincerely hope that the consolidated budget which I shall present to you on February 1st will help you in the General Assembly to a clearer understanding of the overall financial problem of our State, and encourage you to tackle my budget recommendations, not piece meal but as integrated parts of an overall program.

INFLATED PRICES

There is one final subject on which I shall comment briefly. Rising prices have threatened the stability of our economy and the security of our people for the last two and one-half years. They have added substantially to the cost of our state and local governments. These inflated prices have been unnecessary as well as dangerous.

There is at least some indication that the price problem may begin to ease in the next few months. The November and December Cost of Living statements of the Department of Labor clearly show a downward trend.

I am confident that the newly elected government in Washington will, if necessary, use all the power of the Federal authorities to see that the upward rush of prices is not resumed. We here in Connecticut should continue to watch developments carefully. Needless to say, I shall use whatever practical means I can to ease the cost of living problem in our own State.

I have outlined the tremendous task that lies before us. I have stressed, not the differences which may divide some of us, but the areas in which all of us—conservatives as well as liberals—can surely work constructively and effectively together.

The Legislatures which have met here before you have frequently touched greatness. Others have bogged down in mediocrity under the pressure of petty politics and of selfish interests.

Similar pressures will be brought to bear on you in the months that lie ahead. I urge you, in all earnestness, to reject them, and to listen instead to the voice of our Connecticut people. These are trying times; and for those who believe as we do in the dynamic future of our American democracy, there is urgency in the air.

Let us pray then that God may give to all of us the vision to see the possibilities that lie before us; the tolerance to work with one another on the basis of understanding and respect; the humanity never to turn our faces from the needs of our people; the courage to move forward toward a tomorrow without fear.

Towns in which high school day classes of vocational agriculture were not maintained were eligible for State aid in sending qualified students to a nearby school on the above list. Parents could legally demand the opportunity. Boards of education directly concerned made the necessary arrangements. During the year more than thirty per cent of all day class students in high schools attended under this special provision for vocational training.

The schools provided practical and technical instruction in farming for adult farmers and younger persons by means of evening, part-time and day classes.

Special classes for veterans in institutional-on-farm training under the G. I. Bill were conducted and extended to other areas during the year.

The high school students and Future Farmers in the day classes had approximately $97,054 of their own invested in their supervised farming. In addition, they supplemented their training with over a half million hours of general farm work and chores done outside of school hours and in school vacation periods.

DISTRIBUTIVE EDUCATION

James A. Dorsey, State Supervisor of Distributive Education
Hartford

Distributive Education, a division of Vocational Education, provides training for those entering the field of distribution as a career and for those who are presently employed in a distributive occupation such as retailing, wholesaling and the service trades. Within the secondary schools its primary purpose is to improve the performance of the trainees on the job and provide such information as will enable the student to progress more rapidly in his chosen field of endeavor.

Adult extension programs are available to provide current methods and procedures in the various phases in the area of distribution for those presently employed.

There are two major classifications of programs in Distributive Education: (1) the cooperative part-time course—usually given to high school seniors, who devote one-half of their formal instructional time to Distributive Education subjects and are required to receive occupational experience on the job; such courses are now in operation in Bridgeport, Hamden, Meriden, Middletown and Norwich. (2) Adult extension courses—which provide training for the regularly employed personnel in distributive occupations and miscellaneous training programs given during the work day for supervisory personnel.

TOWNS, CITIES AND BOROUGHES

The following list of municipal officers and Justices of the Peace was compiled from returns filed with the Secretary by the local municipal clerks through July, 1949. Where the name of the post-office or express office address of the town clerk, town treasurer or first selectman is other than that of the town itself, it is given.

Statistics of towns, cities and boroughs are also secured from the clerks of the several municipalities annually, and upon them we depend for the accuracy of the data herein set forth. The area of the towns is taken from the 1902 report of the Bureau of Labor Statistics. These are the only complete data available and are quoted with the exception of those corrections made by the town clerks. The populations of towns are taken from the 1940 United States Census. The children are those between the ages of 4 and 16 enumerated September, 1948. The grand lists are taken from returns filed with the tax commissioner for the year 1948.

THE AMERICAN FLAG

THE STATE FLAG

STATE EMBLEMS

AND

STATE BUILDINGS

THE AMERICAN'S CREED

(The American's Creed by William Tyler Page was adopted by an act of Congress, April 6, 1918.)

I believe in the United States of America, as a government of the people, by the people, for the people; whose just powers are derived from the consent of the governed; a democracy in a republic; a sovereign nation of many sovereign states; a perfect union, one and inseparable; established upon those principles of freedom, equality, justice and humanity for which American patriots sacrificed their lives and fortunes. I therefore believe it is my duty to my country to love it, to support its constitution, to obey its laws, to respect its flag, and to defend it against all enemies.

THE PLEDGE TO THE FLAG

"I pledge allegiance to the flag of the United States of America
And to the Republic for which it stands,
One Nation, indivisible,
With liberty and justice for all."

The Pledge to the Flag, according to a report of the Historical Committee of the United States Flag Association, was written by Francis Bellamy (August 1892), a member of the editorial staff of The Youth's Companion, in Boston, Massachusetts. It was first repeated at the exercises in connection with the celebration of Columbus Day, October 12, 1892.

THE AMERICAN FLAG, ITS ORIGIN

The desire for a flag to symbolize the pride in a locality or organization runs far back into the colonial period. In 1747 flags for individual military companies were fairly common. Thus by 1776 the colonists were accustomed to having their own flags and it was but natural that the Continental Congress instruct a committee composed of George Washington, Robert Morris and Colonel George Ross to devise and produce a flag for the United States. This Committee with the probable aid of Betsy Ross designed a flag which is the basis of our present national flag. On June 14, 1777, this flag was officially adopted by the passage of the following resolution:

"Resolved, that the flag of the thirteen United States be thirteen stripes, alternate red and white; that the union be thirteen stars, white on a blue field, representing a new constellation."

It is difficult to prove when and where the flag adopted in 1777 was first publicly displayed. New York claims one of the earliest uses of the flag for military purposes when it was used at Fort Stanwix.

The tradition that Betsy Ross, as early as June 1776, made a Stars and Stripes flag from a pencil sketch supplied by Washington but changed the points of the stars from six to five, has become a classic. Historians doubt its accuracy and modern historical researchers are giving much thought to Francis Hopkinson of New Jersey as the possible designer and the Fillmore or Bennington flag as the first flag.

The flag with the thirteen stripes and thirteen stars, authorized on June 14, 1777, continued to be used as the national emblem until Congress passed the following act which President Washington signed:

“That from and after May 1, 1795, the flag of the United States be fifteen stripes, alternate red and white; and that the union be fifteen stars, white in a blue field.”

This action was necessitated by the admission of the States of Vermont and Kentucky to the Union. This was the flag which Francis Scott Key saw waving over Fort McHenry and was inspired to write the “Star Spangled Banner.”

With the admission of more new states, it became apparent that the 1795 flag would have to be further modified. Therefore the final form of our flag was fixed by another act of Congress, signed by President Monroe on April 4, 1818, providing:

“That from and after the fourth day of July next, the flag of the United States be thirteen horizontal stripes, alternate red and white; that the union
• have twenty stars, white in a blue field.

That on the admission of every new state into the Union, one star be added to the union of the flag; and that such addition shall take effect on the Fourth of July next succeeding such admission.”

From 1818 to the present the flag has changed only in arrangement of the stars when a new state was admitted to the Union. On October 26, 1912, President Taft, by executive order, designated which star was to stand for which state. There were to be six rows of eight stars each and the stars were to symbolize the states in the order in which they ratified our national Constitution. In this arrangement the fifth star stands for Connecticut.

CONNECTICUT STATE FLAG

THE STATE FLAG

Revised Statutes of 1949, Section 3581.

The first proposal for legislation adopting a State Flag was introduced to the General Assembly by the following communication from Governor O. Vincent Coffin, dated May 29, 1895:

"I have the honor to transmit herewith a memorial and accompanying documents from the Anna Warner Bailey Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution concerning the formal adoption of a State flag, and beg to bespeak your early attention to the patriotic purposes therein set forth."

A Resolution appointing a special committee was adopted the same day, and on July 4, 1895 House Joint Resolution No. 480 was approved, which reads as follows:

"Resolved by this Assembly: Section 1. That the flag which has up to the present time been generally accepted as the flag of this State ought to be officially and formally designated as such; and to this end that such designation be carefully and accurately prepared, the Adjutant-General is hereby instructed to prepare an official description of the State flag and report the same to the next session of the General Assembly."

Adjutant General Charles P. Graham submitted a very interesting historical report of the use of a state flag, dated January 4, 1897, a photostatic copy of which may be seen at the State Library.

The General Assembly of 1897 provided the following to be the official description of the State Flag.

"The following-described flag is the official flag of the state. The dimensions of the flag shall be five feet and six inches in length; four feet and four inches in width. The flag shall be of azure blue silk, charged with a shield of rococo design of argent white silk, having embroidered in the center three grape vines, supported and bearing fruit in natural colors. The bordure to the shield shall be embroidered in two colors, gold and silver. Below the shield shall be a white streamer, cleft at each end, bordered by gold and browns in fine lines, and upon the streamer shall be embroidered in dark blue letters the motto 'Qui Transtulit Sustinet'; the whole design being the arms of the state."

In our busy lives, let us cherish the memory of the Charter Oak—true to its trust and unto the end, an oak.

The famous old Charter Oak fell with a tremendous crash during the great storm at quarter before one o'clock on the morning of August 21, 1856. This famous monarch of the forest whose history is so intimately entwined in that of Connecticut, was supposed to be upwards of a thousand years of age.

Before Governor Wyllys came to America, he sent his steward forward to prepare a place for his residence. As he was cutting away the trees upon the hillside of the beautiful “Wyllys place” a deputation of Indians came to him and requested that he would spare this old hollow oak. They declared that it had been the “guide of their ancestors for centuries.”

On the 31st of October, 1687, Sir Edmund Andros, attended by members of his Council, and a bodyguard of sixty soldiers, entered Hartford to take by force the Charter granted to the Colony by Charles the Second in 1662. By stratagem, however, the Charter was removed from the assembly room and concealed by Captain Joseph Wadsworth, a patriot of those times, in the hollow of the Wyllys Oak, afterwards known as “The Charter Oak”.

In 1689, King James abdicated, and on the 9th of May that year Governor Treat and his associate officers resumed the government of Connecticut under the Charter, which had been preserved in the Old Oak.

CONNECTICUT STATE SEAL

THE STATE SEAL

REVISED STATUTES OF 1949, SECTION 179.

A complete history of the seal as then used, was published in the Register and Manual of 1889

The first Colonial seal seems to have been suggested by General Fenwick of that time. This seal succeeded the British seal. It was slightly oval with a beaded border and smaller in size than the reproduction given here of the present seal. It was described as follows:

"This seal represents a vineyard of fifteen vines, supported and bearing fruit." Above the vines, a hand issued from the clouds at the left of the observer, holding a label with the motto: "Sustinet qui transtulit."

After the Colony received its charter the first General Assembly thereafter on October, 1662, directed its continuance as the State Seal.

When the government of the Colony was taken over by Sir Edmund Andros, this seal was destroyed. On October 25, 1711, the General Assembly directed that a new seal be adopted. This seal was still oval in shape and considerably larger than the other. Instead of fifteen vines, there were but three, and there was a hand midway to the left of the observer and pointed to them.

The immediate predecessor to the present seal was adopted in 1784 and had four clusters of grapes on the upper two vines and five on the lower. The hand was omitted and the scroll and motto appeared beneath the clusters of grapes as in the present seal. This design was made in two seals, one for impressing documents and another for wax.

One of these seals, or that used for impressing documents, became damaged. The other, or that used for impressing wax, was given to Yale University, while the former rests in the cornerstone of the State Library.

The General Assembly of 1931 described the Great Seal, and an official drawing was made upon parchment, which drawing may be seen in the office of the Secretary.

MOUNTAIN LAUREL—Kalmia latifolia
STATE FLOWER OF CONNECTICUT

THE STATE FLOWER

REVISED STATUTES OF 1949, SECTION 3582.

The mountain laurel, designated in 1907 as the State Flower of Connecticut, is perhaps the most beautiful of native American shrubs. Its fragrance and the massed richness of its white and pink blossoms, so vividly in contrast with the gloom of the virgin forest, at once attracted the notice of the early settlers and explorers. John Smith mentioned it in his "General History" of 1624. In 1750, the Swedish traveller, Peter Kalm, sent specimens of it to Linnaeus, and the famous botanist, finding that it belonged to a genus of evergreen hitherto unknown, gave it the name Kalmia latifolia. In the first name he honored his correspondent, and in the second, described the "wide-leaved" characteristic of the plant.

Because it bore some resemblance to the European laurel, the settlers of New England already spoke of it as "laurel" or "mountain laurel." They also adopted the name "spoonwood", from the Indians, who had carved some of their eating utensils from the close-grained wood. A later generation dubbed it "Calico bush" from its resemblance to the printed cloth, and both of these descriptive names are still occasionally heard.

In Connecticut, the mountain laurel blossoms in the latter part of June. It is characteristic of the plant that the flower clusters appear in greatest profusion every second or third years, so that the area enriched by it in one season, may have little to show in the next. But as with other evergreens, the foliage is prized as well as the flower, and the wide use of its mountain laurel for decorative purposes prompted Connecticut to protect its state flower by the passage of the "Laurel Law," a pioneer enactment in the field of conservation.

The mountain laurel's immediate relatives in America are the azalea and the rhododendron. It is also cousin to the huckleberry and the blueberry, so abundant in our fields.

For a complete description of the mountain laurel, and the measures that should be taken for its protection, see P. L. Buttrick, "Connecticut's State Flower, The Mountain Laurel." (Marsh Botanical Garden Publication, Number One) New Haven, 1924.

THE AMERICAN ROBIN—Turdus Migratorius
STATE BIRD OF CONNECTICUT

THE STATE BIRD

REVISED STATUTES OF 1949, SECTION 3583.

The American Robin is a true thrush of the family Turdidæ, and is found in summer throughout North America from Alaska to Virginia. The name Robin is applied to a number of familiar birds but in North America it is the Turdus migratorius. (Meaning a migratory thrush.)

The real "Robin Red-breast" is a native of the Old World—a little bird formed much like our Bluebird with a dark brown back and reddish-orange throat and breast. Our so-called Robin is a large migratory thrush with a reddish-brown or tawny breast and a loud cheery song, but our forefathers named him Robin in remembrance of the beloved English bird, and despite the protests of naturalists the name is still used

Most people do not know that many Robins spend the entire winter in New England where they roost among the evergreens in swamps, feed on winter berries and come out into the fields occasionally when the snow has vanished during a thaw. This common habit is so little known that nearly every winter the newspapers publish articles predicting an early spring because the "Robins have arrived early".

The 1943 General Assembly adopted the American Robin as the official State Bird.

THE EXECUTIVE RESIDENCE

THE EXECUTIVE RESIDENCE

990 Prospect Avenue, West Hartford

The Executive Residence was built in 1909 by Dr. George C. F. Williams, who occupied it until 1933. The house is of Georgian Colonial design of waterstruck brick with limestone trim and slate roof. The original cost of the development of the property was $300,000. The purchase price to the state was $38,928. The property consists of approximately six acres of grounds and a 19-room residence and a garage with caretaker's quarters. It is located at 990 Prospect Avenue near Elizabeth Park, famous nationally for its rose gardens. Situated on a hill the Executive Residence overlooks the city of Hartford and the central feature of the view is the State Capitol dome.

The property was purchased by the state in August, 1943 after thirty-eight pieces of property throughout the state were inspected and visited by the 1943 Legislative Committee on the Executive Residence.

The furniture and decorations are 18th Century originals and reproductions. On loan at the Residence are furniture, pewter, ceramics and paintings from the Mabel Brady Garvan Collection of the Yale University Art Gallery. The collection was a gift to Yale University by Francis P. Garvan, a native of East Hartford, Connecticut, and at one time Assistant United States Attorney General. He was one of the outstanding collectors of Americana in the nation. Items loaned to the state are, for the most part, of Connecticut origin and range from a tall case clock nearly 200 years old, which was made by Asabel Cheney of East Hartford, to two pewter tankards made by Thomas Danforth II of Middletown.

Governor Raymond E. Baldwin and his family occupied the residence on September 14, 1945. The formal public opening ceremonies were held on October 18, 1945.

CONNECTICUT STATE CAPITOL

THE STATE CAPITOL

In 1871 the General Assembly appointed a commission to contract for and fully complete a Capitol building in Hartford, and appropriated five hundred thousand dollars, authorizing the city of Hartford to appropriate and issue bonds to the extent of one million dollars for the same purpose.

The commission accepted the present site from the city of Hartford, and the plan of Richard Marshall Upjohn of New York, as a design for the building, which was built by James G. Batterson of Hartford.

In 1873 the plan was changed to a design for the present fireproof building, and five hundred thousand dollars additional appropriated by the State. A new commission was also appointed. In 1875 this was supplemented by a further and final appropriation of one million dollars and in that year Hartford became the Capital of the State.

The entire cost, including heating and ventilating apparatus, and such statuary as was placed at the time of erection, was $2,532,524.43, and the cost of the furniture was about one hundred thousand dollars more.

The General Assembly opened its first regular session in the building in January, 1879, but it was not fully completed until some months later.

The building at one time contained the State Library. Part of the space used for such purpose however has since been remodeled and now contains the present Senate Chamber. The Supreme Court also held sessions here and the hall which was used for this purpose is now part of the offices of the Personnel Department.

The rooms used for offices and committees are in number about ninety-two and are numbered from one hundred onward, with the exception of the Senate Chamber, Representatives Hall and the room now used for the Judiciary Committee, formerly the Old Senate Chamber. The present Senate Chamber in addition to seating the Senate of thirty-six members, can comfortably seat approximately three hundred additional persons, while the House of Representatives, besides seating two hundred and seventy-two members, can seat with the aid of its galleries about six hundred more.

The dimensions of the Capitol Building are as follows:

Extreme length, two hundred ninety-five feet, eight inches; width of central part, one hundred eighty-nine feet four inches; of wings, one hundred eleven feet eight inches; height from ground to top of roof, ninety-two feet eight inches; to top of crowning finial, two hundred forty-five feet six inches.

It is located upon a hill overlooking what was at one time the campus of Trinity College and it is within short distance of the Union Depot and but a few blocks from the new Post Office. Its grounds can be approached by drives, from Ford, Trinity and Washington Streets or by way of Capitol Avenue.

Adjacent and making complete the picturesque setting of the State Capitol is Bushnell Park, this covers 41.27 acres. On the grounds of the Park near the east entrance is the statue of General Israel Putnam and statues of Horace Wells and a Memorial to Veterans of the Spanish War are located in that part of the Park beyond Trinity Street. Upon the terrace and to the north of the Capitol are two nine inch Dahlgren guns, which were used on the warship Hartford. Conspicuous from all directions looking to the Capitol from the north side is the Corning Fountain with Indian Figures supporting it and a memorial arch spanning Trinity Street. Throughout the Park trees are planted of different varieties and from spring to late fall make its surrounding unsurpassed by any Capitol grounds.

The exterior of the building is of marble and granite, the marble being quarried from East Canaan, Connecticut, and the granite from Westerly, Rhode Island.

At the north side above the entrance appears in bas-relief figures, Colonial Life as follows: "Indian Attack upon a Fort," "Wadsworth Hiding the Charter," while in the center, is the Coat of Arms; also "Putnam Leaving His Plow," "John Holmes Sailing Past a Dutch Fort." Above these in order follow statues of the colonial leaders, John Haynes, Joseph Wadsworth, John Winthrop, Jr., Theophilus Eaton, John Mason and Roger Ludlow. In bronze medallion, upon one side of the entrance is the bust outline of General Joseph R. Hawley, whilst upon the other side is the bust outline of late Senator Orville H. Platt.

On the east front upon pedestals similarly arranged, are also statues of colonial leaders, Thomas Hooker, Roger Sherman, Jonathan Trumbull and John Davenport. Medallion heads upon the east front of the Capitol depict those of the State distinguished in arts and letters as follows: Joel Barlow, George Berkeley, Horace Bushnell, Noah Webster, John Trumbull, Jonathan Edwards and again in bas-relief: "Hooker's March to Hartford," "The Charter Oak," and "Davenport Preaching at New Haven."

On the south side of the building there appear in niches the statues of Generals John Sedgwick and Alfred Terry, while on the west side of the building statues in the niches are, Oliver Wolcott, David Humphreys, David Wooster and Oliver Ellsworth. On the grounds just off the south-east driveway are located bronze statues of Col. Thomas Knowlton and Governor Richard D. Hubbard. At the entrance of this driveway is the "Petersburgh Express," a mortar relic of the Civil War while on the west side of the building is a statue of Major General Clarence Ransom Edwards.

Within the building at the west end protected in glass cases are the various flags used by regiments in the Civil, Spanish and World Wars which were carried by military or naval divisions of Connecticut engaged therein. There are also bronze statues of Nathan Hale and William A. Buckingham, model of the statue formerly on the Capitol dome and the figure head which once adorned the prow of the Flagship Hartford. About the first floor are also relics of the Civil War, being a portion of a tree, taken from the battlefield of Chickamauga and a wheel of a cannon used by the 1st Conn. Lt. Bt. & Vols., in various battles in the South. In the south lobby is a revolving cannon taken from the Spanish warship Viscaya and a camp bedstead used by Marquis de Lafayette.

The crowning feature of the Capitol was the winged bronze figure representing the Genius of Connecticut, by Randolph Rogers, Rome, 1877 and cast by Ferd v Miller & Sohne, Munchen, 1878. It measured seventeen feet to the tip of its wings, weighed six thousand six hundred pounds, and cost $14,000. The plaster cast in the north corridor of the Capitol is the same as the one from which the bronze was cast. In 1938 the Genius was removed and replaced by a temporary stone finial.

The twelve marble statues standing upon the twelve angles of the dome at the base of the cone represent Agriculture, Commerce, Education, Music, Science and Force. There are two of each. The models from which these statues were cut were modeled by J. Q. A. Ward of New York and are now standing on the copings of the two main stairways leading to the balcony of the House of Representatives. The statues are twice the size of the models.

On the first floor are the offices of the Comptroller, Treasurer and Bureau of School Fund, State Auditors, and the Superintendent of the Capitol.

On the second floor are the offices of the Governor, the Secretary of the State, Legislative Commissioner, the Hall of the House and rooms generally used for hearings of Judiciary and Appropriations Committees.

On the third floor are the offices of the Lieutenant-Governor, Attorney-General, Commissioner of Finance, Personnel Director, Budget Director, members of the Press and the Senate Chamber.

On the fourth floor are the offices of the Purchasing Director, Pharmacy Commission and Committee rooms in addition to the room generally used by the Judiciary Committee and Appropriations Committee on the second floor.

On the fifth floor are the offices of the Analytical Department and Retirement Division (Comptrollers), the Capitol Restaurant, the Photostat and Stock Room (Secretary of the State).

STATE LIBRARY AND SUPREME COURT BUILDING

THE STATE OFFICE BUILDING

THE CONNECTICUT INDIANS

By

Irving Rouse, Associate Professor and Associate Curator of Anthropology, Peabody Museum of Natural History, Yale University.

The American Indians first settled the New World from Asia and are an offshoot of the Mongoloid race in the eastern part of that continent. According to the latest archeological evidence, they migrated to North America towards the close of the Ice Age, about 15,000 years ago. Passing from Siberia across the Bering Straits—which may then have been dry or frozen over—they moved up the Yukon River, across the divide between Alaska and Canada, and down the plains east of the Rockies, roughly along the route of the present Alcan Highway.

For many centuries, their center of habitation seems to have been on the Great Plains of the United States, just east of the Rockies. Eventually, they filtered west, east, and south, occupying the rest of the New World.

Somewhere in Latin America, probably either in Mexico, Peru, or in both, the Indians discovered how to cultivate corn, beans, and other plants. They also developed pottery-making, metallurgy, and other crafts; their population increased; cities arose; kingdoms and even empires were established. By the time the Spaniards invaded Mexico and Peru, these areas were the centers of great civilizations, comparable to those of the Old World. Although some students have claimed that the Indian civilizations were introduced from the Old World by voyages across the Pacific Ocean, it is probable that they were indigenous and influenced very little, if at all, by developments in Oceania, Asia, Africa, and Europe.

Outside Mexico, Peru, and some adjacent territory, the Indians were less advanced. In fact, the further a group of Indians lived from the centers of civilization in Mexico and Peru, the less developed they were apt to be, in part at least because they had less opportunity to learn all the techniques of agriculture, pottery-making, and the other elements of civilization which had been invented in the centers. The least advanced of all were the Indians of southern South America and the Far North, although the Eskimo in the latter area did possess some customs derived from Siberia, having apparently migrated from that region at a late date.

The Connecticut Indians were relatively far removed from the centers of civilization and led a correspondingly "savage" and uncivilized life. While they practiced some agriculture when first encountered by the colonists, this was probably secondary to hunting and fishing. It was not uncommon for a group to live along the shore in the summer time, gathering fish and shell fish, and to move into the interior during the winter to hunt. The settlements were small, widely scattered, and consisted of dome-shaped huts covered with bark. While the Indians made clay pots, wood, bark, and soapstone vessels were more common.

Political organization was simple, each small group being independent or else included in a loosely organized confederacy, none of which covered a very large territory. The language spoken was Algonkian, a form widely spread among the more primitive Indians of the eastern United States from Tennessee and Virginia on the south to Hudson Bay on the north. It contrasted with the Iroquoian tongue, spoken by the Indians of central and western New York state, who were more advanced and often exacted tribute from their Algonkian neighbors.

It is not certain exactly when the Indians entered Connecticut. The earliest traces yet found archeologically do not date from before the time of Christ. The earliest Indians lacked agriculture and clay pottery, although they were already making vessels of soapstone, of which there are a number of quarries in the state. The principal implements were arrows or javelins with chipped stone heads, which are commonly found in the sites. Subsequently, the Indians adopted agriculture and clay pottery, probably from their neighbors to the southwest. Burial and temple mounds, which accompany these traits west of the Alleghenies, never reached New England, however. Some implements, such as ground slate knives and projectile points, may have been derived from the north, possibly from Eskimo groups who had moved as far south as the mouth of the St. Lawrence River.

The local Indian population remained relatively pure until shortly before the arrival of the colonists, when a new group, the Mohegan-Pequot, moved into the state from the north and west, from either the upper Housatonic or upper Hudson valley. These newcomers, while also speaking an Algonkian language, had been in contact with the Iroquois and had taken over some of the latter's customs, thus becoming somewhat more advanced than the local Indians. They seized the Thames River valley around New London and Norwich, leaving the rest of the state in the hands of the local Indians, who included such groups as the Nehantic on the eastern shore, the Quinnipiac near New Haven, and the Podunk and Tunxis near Hartford.

There is some evidence that another group of Indians intruded into the southwestern part of the state, as far as the Housatonic River, before the arrival of the Mohegan-Pequot. These Indians are believed to have come from the neighborhood of New York city; in historic times they formed part of the Wappinger Confederacy, which included also the tribes of lower New York state and western Long Island. Other groups from New York and Massachusetts were situated along the northern border of the state.

Of all the groups of Indians in Connecticut, the Mohegan-Pequot had the most impact on the colonists. The major part of this group, the Pequot, became hostile to the colonists under the leadership of their chief sachem, Sassacus. The Mohegans, led by the sachem Uncas, remained friendly and helped the colonists defeat the Pequot, who were finally dispersed in a battle in a swamp near Fairfield. The Mohegans continued to live in their tribal territory. Several of them fought in the Revolutionary War and they have since participated ably in American life.

A small group of Mohegans still live at Montville, near Norwich, where the Tantaquidgeon family maintains a small museum, open to the public. There are also Pequot reservations near Ledyard and Stonington, as well as a reservation for the other tribes at Scatticook, near Kent. No more than a dozen or so individuals live in any of these reservations, and they are of mixed blood, speak only English, and otherwise conform to American customs. For the most part the original inhabitants of the state have died out, or have become assimilated into the white population.

CONNECTICUT TOWNS IN THE ORDER OF THEIR ESTABLISHMENTS; WITH THE ORIGIN OF THEIR NAMES

Until 1700 almost the only official action of the colonial government (General Court) in regard to town organization, was to authorize the town name, usually chosen by its leading man, from his home in England. In October, 1700, we find implied or quasi incorporation, such as exists to this day in the records. "This assembly doth grant to the inhabitants of the town of Lebanon all such immunities, privileges and powers, as generally other townes within this Colonie have and doe enjoy." The authoritative legal definition of a town in England, contemporary with the earliest Connecticut settlements is given in the first edition of Coke's Commentaries upon Littleton, published 1628: "It can not be a town in law, unless it hath, or in past time hath had, a church, and celebration of Divine services, sacraments and burials." The churches, which moved bodily, with their pastors, from Massachusetts to Connecticut, proceeded to exercise the secular powers which we regard as those of the town, but the English township is known by its ecclesiastical name of parish. Several of our towns were first set off as parishes from great town-tracts; yet the town in Connecticut colony essentially separated church and state in government, in that it never restricted political suffrage to church members. As to dates, the official colonial records are followed, as soon as they begin, 1636.

CONNECTICUT FROM 1756 TO 1940

The census of 1774 embraces as a part of Litchfield County "Westmoreland, 1,922", presumably the Pennsylvania tract at that time claimed by Connecticut. "Fair Haven, 1,317," is included in the figures for 1850. The creation of new towns explains many apparent losses in population of the older ones. See section "Towns, Cities and Boroughs", in this volume.

REPRESENTATIVES IN CONGRESS FROM CONNECTICUT SINCE 1789

Previous to 1837 the Representatives from this State were elected by the people at large. The number at first, under the Constitution, was five and by later apportionments was changed in 1793 to seven, in 1823 to six, and in 1843 to four. From 1837 to 1843 they were elected one from each of the six districts into which the state was divided by an Act of the General Assembly; from 1843 to 1911 they were elected, one from each of the four districts established by the General Assembly of 1842, as follows: District number one, consisting of the counties of Hartford and Tolland; district number two, the counties of New Haven and Middlesex; district number three, the counties of New London and Windham; district number four, the counties of Fairfield and Litchfield. A fifth representative, to which the State is entitled under the census of 1900, was chosen at large. At the session of 1911 the State was divided into five districts as follows: District No. 1, County of Hartford; District No. 2, Counties of Tolland, Windham, New London and Middlesex; District No. 3, Towns of Cheshire, Meriden, Wallingford, Bethany, Hamden, North Haven, North Branford, Guilford, Madison, Woodbridge, Orange, West Haven, Milford, New Haven, East Haven and Branford in County of New Haven; District No. 4, County of Fairfield; District No. 5, County of Litchfield and the Towns of Southbury, Middlebury, Waterbury, Wolcott, Oxford, Naugatuck, Prospect, Beacon Falls, Seymour, Ansonia, and Derby in the County of New Haven. At the session of 1921, a law was passed creating the office of congressman-at-large to be in effect when the federal apportionment gave Connecticut six congressmen as at present.

In instances where no districts are given the elections were at large.

The names of those who are now living are marked*.

GOVERNORS OF CONNECTICUT

The supreme executive power of the State is vested by the Constitution in the Governor. He has the power to administer oaths, sign writs, issue processes, and to see that the laws of the State are faithfully executed. In case of emergency he may convene the General Assembly in special session. He is commander-in-chief of the militia of the State, has power to grant reprieves in all cases except impeachment, and has jurisdiction in the matter of requisitions from other states for criminals. He has power to veto any bills passed by the General Assembly, but his veto may be overridden by a majority vote in both Houses upon reconsideration. Any bill which is neither signed nor vetoed by him within five days after being presented to him (Sundays and legal holidays excepted) during the session of the General Assembly, becomes a law, in like manner as if signed by him. After adjournment of the General Assembly he is allowed fifteen calendar days after bills have been presented to him in which to act. The Governor must also present a biennial budget for the State early in the session of each General Assembly and has control over the quarterly allotments granted after the budget has been acted on by the General Assembly. He must from time to time give to the General Assembly information concerning the State and recommend such measures as he deems expedient. He may adjourn the General Assembly in case of disagreement between the two Houses to such time as he thinks proper, but not beyond the day of the next stated session. He nominates to the General Assembly the judges of the Supreme, Superior, Common Pleas, Juvenile and Municipal Courts and appoints, with the consent of the Senate or the General Assembly, the Banking Commissioner, the Commissioner of Finance and Control, Highway Commissioner, Insurance Commissioner, Commissioner of Labor and Factory Inspection, a Milk Administrator, Commissioner of Motor Vehicles, Public Utilities Commissioners, State Water Commissioners, Tax Commissioner, Commissioner of Food and Drugs, Commissioner of Farms and Markets, and Commissioner of Welfare. He appoints directly a Commissioner of Athletics, Commissioners of Fisheries and Game, Health Commissioner, Liquor Control Commissioners, Police Commissioner, and the members of various other boards and commissions. He is ex-officio a member of the Board of Control of the Connecticut Agricultural Experiment Station, the State Board of Education, the Board of Education of the Blind, the Board of Pardons, the State Library Committee, the Board of Trustees of the Connecticut State Hospital, and the Corporation of Yale University.

The Governor presided over the General Assembly before it was divided into two Houses in 1698; from that date until the adoption of the Constitution of 1818 he presided in the council or upper house, with a casting vote, but no veto power. At the present time the Lieutenant-Governor presides over the Senate.

The title of His Excellency was given to the Governor by an act passed in May, 1777.

The Governor holds office for two years and receives an annual salary of $12,000. The Governor also is furnished a Governor's Residence located at 990 Prospect Avenue, Hartford.

DEPUTY OR LIEUTENANT-GOVERNORS

Before the Constitution of 1818 the Deputy-Governor presided in council, or the upper house of the General Assembly, in the absence of the Governor, but when the Governor was present the Deputy-Governor had a voice in council. Until 1818 he could exercise the office of a justice of the peace throughout the State, and he could sign writs until 1879.

The Lieutenant-Governor is President of the Senate, has a casting vote therein, and the right to debate when it is in Committee of the Whole. In case of the death, resignation, refusal to serve, inability to perform the powers and duties of his office, impeachment, removal from office or absence from the State of the Governor, the Lieutenant-Governor is required by the Constitution "to perform the duties of the Governor, until another be chosen at the next periodical election for Governor and be duly qualified, or until the disability be removed, or until the Governor impeached or absent, shall be acquitted or return." He is ex-officio, a member of the Corporation of Yale University, the State Board of Education and the Board of Visitors to the Sheffield Scientific School.

The title of His Honor was conferred upon the Lieutenant-Governor at the revision of the Statutes in 1784.

He is elected for two years and receives an annual salary of $4,500.

The names of those who are now living are marked*.

SECRETARIES

After the adoption of the Fundamental Orders, Edward Hopkins was chosen as the first Secretary of the State. Since that date, the duties assigned to the Secretary have grown with the growth of Connecticut and its increasing governmental activities. Today, the office has more than fifty constitutional or statutory duties to perform.

The office is charged with custody of the public documents and formal records of the State, among the more important of which are the Acts and Resolutions, and Orders of the General Assembly.

The department has been assigned the duty of administration of the laws relative to corporations created under the provisions of the General Statutes. This task includes the approval of all certificates of incorporation, organization and dissolution to mention only a few of the items in this large volume of business.

Other functions of the office are prescribed by the Election Laws which call for the office's filing and checking of all petitions for party designation on ballots and voting machine labels and the filing of lists of candidates for office. Approval of voting machines as to accuracy and efficiency is delegated to the Secretary. Local election officials obtain instructions and samples of supplies from the Secretary for use in connection with voting machines. Various election statistics are returned to this Department, as are also returns required under the Corrupt Practice Act.

The Secretary supervises the publication of the Connecticut State Register and Manual, the Statement of Vote, Manual and Roll of the General Assembly and individual volumes devoted to Corporation Laws, Election Laws, Trade Mark Laws, digest of Workmen's Compensation Decisions, Reports of the Supreme Court, and digests of the decisions of the Supreme Court.

Included in a group of miscellaneous functions are the calling of the Senate to order and administration of the official oath on the first day of each session; certification of copies of official records, the affixation of the Seal to all commissions issued in the name of and by the State, and records concerned with legislative appearances.

COMPTROLLERS

The office of Comptroller was created in 1786 by virtue of an act of the General Assembly and thereafter until 1838 appointments to this office were made by the General Assembly. The Constitutional Amendment of 1836 provided that the Comptroller be elected by the people, in a manner similar to that of other State Officers, and since the year 1838 this method has been in effect.

Previous to the establishment of this office, orders on the Treasurer might be drawn by the Governor, or assistants, or by justices of the peace for sums under forty shillings. The Committee of the Pay-Table, which this office superseded, was originally established to liquidate and adjust accounts of expenses relating to the War of the Revolution.

The Comptroller is required to adjust and settle all public accounts and demands, excepting grants and orders of the General Assembly. The prescribing of the mode of keeping and rendering all public accounts is his responsibility. Periodically, the Comptroller renders an accounting of the State's debts and credits; examines into the collection of taxes to ascertain that all officers engaged in their assessment, or collection, are faithfully performing their duties, and reports to the General Assembly those who are remiss in this regard; presents all claims in favor of the State against estates of insolvent and deceased persons, and brings suit for the recovery of the money and property of the State.

All obligations against the State, whether they be purchase order, contract or otherwise, are approved and recorded by the Comptroller. Any purchase order, or contract, is void unless it carries his approval and certificate that it is recorded and charged against the applicable specific appropriation and that there are sufficient unencumbered funds. A copy of such certified purchase order, or contract, is then transmitted by him to the respective vendor or contractor.

In addition, when the General Assembly established the Real Asset Control and Field Service Division under the Comptroller's Department, the Comptroller was made responsible for all new construction, repair and maintenance of any real asset involving an expenditure in excess of one thousand dollars; the assigning of office space and the providing of necessary accommodations for all State agencies. With the establishment of this division under his jurisdiction, he likewise was made responsible for the supervision, care and control of the building and grounds of the State Capitol, the State Office Building, the official residence of the Governor, the State Police buildings located in Hartford, and leased quarters for State agencies located in the various cities and towns throughout the State.

The compilation of semi-monthly employees' payrolls for all State departments and institutions is another of his responsibilities, as also is the providing of furniture, standard forms, and other necessary articles for all State offices and for the General Assembly.

Printing of all State forms and reports is under his direction.

At the opening of each regular session of the General Assembly, and more often if required, he submits to this body an abstract of the receipts and expenditures of the public funds for the two years ending the 30th of June preceding, and plans and estimates relating to the public expenditures, revenues and funds.

The Comptroller, by direction of the General Assembly, administers miscellaneous appropriations which, including the cost of the Comptroller's office, amount to over $6,000,000 a biennium.

He is a member and secretary of the Employees' Retirement Commission, records of which are kept in his office; a member of the Board of Canvassers and Banking Commission; ex-officio, one of the Auditors of the Treasurer's accounts.

Elected for a term of two years, the Comptroller receives an annual salary of $6,000.

ATTORNEYS-GENERAL

The office of Attorney-General was created by the General Assembly of 1897. The incumbent is elected by the people, in the same manner as the other State officers and must be an attorney-at-law of at least ten years active practice at the bar of this State.

His duties include a general supervision over all legal matters in which the State is an interested party, except those over which prosecuting officers have direction. He is required to appear for the State, the several elective State officers, the State boards, commissions, agents, etc., and institutions, in all suits and other civil proceedings, excepting upon criminal recognizances and bail bonds, in which the State is a party or is interested, or in which the official acts and doings of said officers are called in question in any court or other tribunal. He is called upon to give his opinion upon questions of law submitted to him by either branch of the General Assembly, to appear before legislative committees, when measures affecting the State treasury are pending, and take such action as he may deem to be for the best interests of the State, and act as general counsel for State Officials in matters pertaining to their official duties.

CHIEF JUSTICES

The highest court in Connecticut was the General Assembly, until 1784, when it relinquished its function as an appellate tribunal to the upper house, which, when sitting for these purposes, was designated as the Supreme Court of Errors. The presiding officer or Chief Judge was at first the Deputy Governor, and later the Governor. In 1807 the membership of this court was completely changed by substituting, under an Act of the preceding year, the Judges of the Superior Court, the Chief Judge of which became the presiding officer. The customary appellation was for some years, Chief Judge, but in the Constitution of 1818 the term Chief Justice was employed, and confirmed a practice already established in that respect.

How to use the Ready Reference Calendar.—To ascertain any day of the week, first look in the table for the year required, and under the months are figures which refer to the corresponding figures at the head of the columns of days below. For Example: To know on what day of the week July 4, 1918, fell, look in the table of years for 1918, and in a parallel line under July is figure 1, which directs to column 1 in which it will be seen that July 4 fell on Thursday.

In leap years the month of February has 29 days.

SUN IN 11 1/3 YEAR SUNSPOT CYCLE

The sun entered (1943) a new 11 1/3-year sunspot group of the old cycle still visible close to the cycle with the first new spot group appearing well equator.
